Flogas Drogheda Project - Ireland

oil & gas applications

DATELINE

“This project is the next in a series of passive fire protection projects carried out for Flogas in the UK and Ireland. This latest project at the headquarters in Drogheda Ireland involves the passive fire protection of 14 horizontal bullets”

London, UK Promat announced today that specialist contractor PFP Contracting Limited is currently supplying and installing a Promat proprietary passive fire protective coating system on 14 horizontal LPG storage tanks.

Promat was selected by the project; Flogas and PFP Contracting Limited to supply its Cafco FENDOLITE® MII integrated fire protective coating system.

This project is next in a series of passive fire protection project carried out for Flogas, part of the DCC group. In 2013 the first 6 vessels on the Drogheda site were passively fire protected with Fendolite MII topcoated with the Decothane system from Liquid Plastic's.

Promat's integrated fire protective coating system has proven fully compatible with this mode of construction having been selected on several projects for this client specifically over 10 years.

Promat has over thirty five years' experience of typical of application.
